Welcome to Wonderland, a place of both happiness and sadness. This camp, often filled with a mix of emotions, is where our story begins. In this land, a girl named Kindness was born, bringing light into a world shadowed by hardship.

Despite the somber surroundings, Kindness always found joy in the little things she had. Her heart brimmed with happiness, even though she couldn't explore beyond the confines of Wonderland. Every day, she would travel to the nearby dumping ground, a place marred by pollution and despair.

In this desolate place, she collected metals and papers, which she sold to make a bit of money, just enough to stave off her hunger. Yet, she didn't keep all the food for herself. Kindness always shared what little she had with other children in Wonderland, finding joy in the act of giving.

Her life, though marked by scarcity, was rich with the happiness she found in sharing. She traveled around the dumping ground, not just to feed herself, but to care for others like her. Despite the overwhelming pollution, her journeys were filled with a sense of purpose and compassion.

In the spirit of spreading happiness, we are invited to travel to Wonderland with Kindness, a land of hope nestled within the dumping ground. Sharing what little we have, because sharing is caring.

And remember to Spread the love—share what you have,
because kindness counts!
